Barbara Costello, chief nurse at Madigan Army Medical Center, Tacoma, Washington. Mrs. Stewart was special guest at Madigan's observance of the Army Nurse Corps' 75th anniversary Feb. 2. She joined the Army Nurse Corps in 1918 and served during World War I. She is wearing a public health nurse uniform. After she left the Army she was a public health nurse for 34 years. Now she lives in Seattle, about 45 miles from Madigan.

The Army and Disaster Relief

FORT LEWIS, WA. -- More than one anguished farmer surveyed a dismal scene of stranded and drowned cattle this winter because of the flooding of Western Washington rivers which far exceeded expectations.

As they totaled their heavy losses, many also wondered why the Army, with all its helicopters and recources, couldn't have done something to help.

The Army and Army Reserve, of which Fort Lewis is the Pacific Northwest center, does, in fact, assist in disaster relief and search and rescue operations when authorized to do so by higher federal authorities.

For instance, MAST (Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic) has flown over 1,300 life-saving missions since its inception. Imminent loss of life has been circumvented by the swift actions of the Fort Lewis Explosive Ordnance Disposal team. Water purification units unique to the Army were used to alleviate a health hazard at Crater Lake, Ore., reducing the possible loss of life through consuming contaminated water. Children from Vietnam, homeless and hungry, were given shelter and sustenance by the Army until they could find proper places to stay in America.

Such assistance is not just limited to people, either. Recently, over two million salmon were transplanted to Fort Lewis' Lake Sequallitchew when their regular spawning beds were accidentally contaminated.

The concept held by the Federal government, however, is that the resources of agencies like the Army shall be allocated for the common good of the people of all states for safeguarding freedom. This means that resources and money available for less than the total population are often limited. In addition, the government must refrain from conflict with labor organizations or community interest groups and avoid the use of taxpayer resources for the private ends of individuals. This means that all requests are carefully analyzed for availability of fuel and funds prior to any project approval.

Basically, the law holds that disaster relief requests must be made to state agencies first. Then, if those agencies--including the National Guard, a resource of the governor--do not have the manpower or equipment to cope with the situation, the request is passed to the federal government.

The proper channel for aid requests starts with a local sheriff or the Washington State Patrol, which relays them to the state's Emergency Services Department. If necessary, Emergency Services will then ask the U.S. Army for help. Fort Lewis then must contact its next higher headquarters for proper authority.

Though this sounds complicated, it can be done by telephone or teletype in a matter of minutes. Where a situation involves lives in imminent danger, the Fort Lewis commander can act first and clear the action later.

Likewise, if individuals call Fort Lewis with an urgent need for help, officials here will advise the person of the proper civil channel for the request and begin actions through Army channels in gaining approval for assistance.

Another procedure allows the Army to help after the governor has proclaimed a portion of the state a disaster area and asked the White House for federal relief. The, the Federal Disaster Administration (FDA) of the Housing and Urban Development Agency (HUD) takes over with the authroity to request support from military resources.

This particular sequence was followed in the wake of Washington flooding, and the FDA requested Army National Guardsmen to assist, according to Fort Lewis officials. "We were in close contact with FDA," said George Campbell of the operations branch of Fort Lewis headquarters, "but they didn't see any requirement for Army assistance."

The federal government and its agencies are designed to help only after state resources can no longer meet the needs. Valuable time can be saved in disaster situations if local authorities contact the State Emergency Services office directly or the State Patrol, instead of calling Fort Lewis first.

NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE

Charging that advocates of "all or nothing" have delayed needed action to meet the critical health care needs of millions of older and disabled citizens, the American Association of Retired Persons urged Congress to "concentrate on obtainable objectives" by immediately reforming the Medicare program - a first step toward national health insurance for all Americans.

Testifying before the House Ways and Means subcommittee, Counsel for the association voice the organization's support of national health insurance legislation introduced by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Rep. James C. Corman. He warned, however, that the nation's older citizens are being priced out of the health care market in spite of existing programs and need immediate action.

The association's counsel made the point that older Americans cannot afford to wait for the chemistry of socio-economic and political events to bring health security, nor can they accept the continued delays of Congress and the President.

Fundamental policy disagreements among Congressmen make passage of a total national health insurance plan in the immediate future unlikely.

Older citizens, as a class, face the highest incidence of illness and disability and are least able to pay for adequate health protection.

Presidential Primary Caucuses Set

On Tuesday evening, 8:00 p.m., March 2nd, 1976, the Democrat and Republican parties of the state of Washington will hold their Presidential Primary Caucuses in each precinct in the state.

In Pierce County there are 623 precincts, and even though the Republican party is not too well represented in some precincts, they have made arrangements for each precinct to have a caucus.

The Pierce County Republican Central Committee have rented six school auditoriums in the city of Tacoma and have other locations reserved in the Puyallup area, Gig Harbor area, Spanaway area, Browns Point and the South Puyallup-Mountain area.

If a precinct has a Republican precinct committeeman, the Caucus will probably be held in their home or nearby. If there is no Republican precinct committeeman, the Caucus will be held at a school, community hall etc. in the neighborhood. For instance, in the Hilltop area we have the Stanley school reserved, where Virginia Taylor will be on hand to assist.

Precinct caucuses are open to all registered voters who declare themselves to be a Republican or a Democrat at the time of the caucus. The Republican goes to the Republican caucus and the Democrat to the Democrat caucus. Both parties hold their Caucuses at the same time and on the same day. Independents do not have a vote at a political party caucus.

The main purpose at a Republican Caucus is to elect delegates to the Republican County Convention which will be held at one of the local colleges around the first of May.

The County Convention elects delegates to the state convention which will be held on June 18th and 19th in Spokane. At the state convention, delegates are elected to the National Convention which will be held in Kansas City, Missouri, August 16 thru 19.

Each pricinct will elect from 1 to 7 delegates to the county convention depending on the Republican vote cast in that precinct ih 1974.

The county convention will elect 138 delegates to the state convention by Legislative District.

The state convention will elect 38 delegates to the National Convention. At the Pierce County Republican convention each delegate will pay a registration fee of $10.00. This will cover the cost of a box lunch, the cost of putting on the convention, and the balance will be put into a fund to be used to pay the expenses of each delegate and alternate delegate elected from Pierce County to the National Convention.

This allows everybody an equal chance to attend the convention if they are elected. It has never been done before. In the past, each delegate had to pay his own expenses to a National Convention.

Get involved in the precinct caucus of the party of your choice! It is an interesting experience and just as important as going to the polls and voting. It is the only way of expressing your desires as to your party's presidential nominee.

Any questions regarding Republican precinct caucuses should be directed to Republican Headquarters, phone 383-1497.

Madigan Collects Blood for Earthquake Victims

Madigan Army Medical Center's blood bank has been collecting blood since Thursday to help the earthquake victims in Guatemala.

"The response has been tremendous," said Maj. Robert Usery, blood bank chief, "More than 150 people from Madigan and Ft. Lewis have already donated and I expect more to come."

Madigan has sent about 100 units of blood to the tri-service blood bank at McGuire AFB, New Jersey, for shipment to the earthquake area. This is part of a nationwide effort by all military services.

The blood will be used by an Army mobile laboratory that left Friday for Guatemala from an Army post in Georgia. Madigan will continue to send blood to resupply the laboratory as long as necessary.

Social Service Jobs Proposal Approved

Approximately 200 employees of the Department of Social and Health Services, scheduled to lose their jobs, have become eligible for special project employment under the Federal Title Ten program.

DSHS Secretary Charles Morris, and George Masten, Executive Director of the Washington Federation of State Employees, said approval for these employees to fill the Title Ten jobs was granted as the result of a joint proposal submitted by the Union and DSHS to the Department of Health Education and Welfare.

The Biannual Budget approved by the 1975 State Legislature required the elimination of more than 400 social service jobs. Efforts have been made to accomolish as much of the reduction as possible through attrition and transfers. Over 200 employees still face the Reduction in Force (RIF).

Title Ten of the Public Works and Economic Development Act provides funds to carry out needed programs not already being provided by the state. Many Title Ten projects require staffing by caseworkers and employees with social service qualifications.

Morris and Masten said federal approval of the joint proposal -- to fill Title Ten jobs with experienced staff now being layed off -- will provide a valuable resource for meeting Title Ten staffing requirements.

The Title Ten jobs must be filled no later than March 19. Employees affected by the layoff will be notified individually, within the next ten days, of the opportunities available to them.

DSHS has been authorized to hire 500 persons in the Title Ten special employment program. Morris and Masten said $6.7 million has been allocated to Washington for such projects as mental health follow-up, direct services to handicapped people, day care, and reinforcement for the medical screening program for children known as Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment.

DSS Schedules Workshop on Drugs and Alcohol

by Frankie J. Donahoe

The Drug Service System of Tacoma, Washington has planned a Drug and Alcohol Workshop to be held February 16, 1976 at 6:00 p.m. at 1306 South 'K' Street in the Tacoma Urban League basement.

The Drug Service System (DSS) is a relatively new community drug program designed to reach and provide counseling and treatment alternatives to drug abusers, primarily in the Black community. Educational and employment counseling is available. Mr. Ronald Murphy is the director.

The goals of the DSS are to 1) try and help to rehabilitate the drug addict in the Black community, 2) to try to help the Black addict to become a responsible and productive individual to himself and his community, and 3) to try to eliminate the drug crisis in the community thru education and community awarencss.

The coordinator, Mr. Troy Jones, has worked in the drug abuse field for three years. He has worked with the Wisconsin Family, Inc., a therapeutic community, and with a halfway house for female alcoholics in Wisconsin.

The agenda for the workshop includes: pharmacology, Dr. J. Kramar of Good Samaritan Hospital; methadone/detox, maintenance and long-acting Methadone, Rick Thompson, Tacoma-Pierce County Narcotics Center; Pros and Cons of Antabuse, Cynthia Burrell, Alcohol Counseling Tacoma Urban League; Social and Psychological Ramifications of Drug Abuse, Rev. J. Rhone, AME church, director of Primm Day Care center; the need and rationale for community-based programs and community involvement, Andre Young, training specialist, Tacoma Urban League.

For further information contact the director, Mr. Ronald W. Murphy, at 572-4750.

C&J Express on the Verge of Being Cancelled

Ron Thomas, Director of Communications & Journalism Project of the Metropolitan Development Council said that because of the lack of students appearing on the "C & J Express", there is a possibility that the show will be off the air in the next week or so.

The main problem, according to Ron, is the lack of interested young men. He went on to say that young women outnumber young men 2 to 1. The "C & J Express, Jr.", which was for junior high and elementary ages, was cancelled last week due to the same problem.

Plans for a contest to be held in Tacoma to send a dance couple to California will have to be cancelled also if the show is cancelled. The dance contest would have been held at the "C & J Express" with participants being selected by the viewing audience, and the winners were to appear in person on 'The Soul Train' show. The "C & J Express" tapes Mondays at 7:30 p.m. sharp at 1224 South 'K' Street, Teleprompter Cable TV, rear entrance. Military personnel are also welcome.

IF YOU CARE, BE THERE.

Agreements Made by Inmates and Administration

Monroe, Washington--The ethnic minority groups of the Washington State Reformatory and the administration of the reformatory signed a series of fourteen agreements Wednesday afternoon, January 28th, relating to institutional procedures and practices. The agreements were developed over the past twelve weeks in mediation sessions conducted by the Community Relations Service of the U.S. Department of Justice.

The purpose of the negotiations was to identify and resolve issues of concern to the population in general and minority residents in particular. The agreements make provision for such measures as the development of cultural awareness training programs for staff, ethnic studies for residents, minority staff recruitment and ethnic foods being added to menus. The implementation of the agreement will be reviewed quarterly by a joint administration-resident committee. The Minority Affairs Office of the Department of Social and Health Services has agreed to assist the parties upon request if needed.

The success of the mediation illustrates that staff and residents can resolve problems through open and honest communication by both sides. The parties involved in the mediation included Jimi Wright, Steve Hayes and Randy Jackson of the Black Prisoners Caucus; John Chambers and Richard Muir of the Indians of All Tribes; and David Frausto of Los Mejicanos. Robert Huges of the Community Relations Service Region X Office in Seattle served as mediator.

The CRS is an agency of the U.S. Department of Justice established under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 with responsibility for assisting local communities in resolving racial and ethnic relations problems.

Family Fun At Stanley School

Stanley school has another "something-for-everyone" Family Fun Nite from 7:00 - 9:00 p.m., Wednesday, February 11th at Stanley school.

This is the third in a four-part series which is sponsored jointly by the school's PTA organization and the URRD (Urban, Rural and Racially Disadvantaged) program. Last year's series drew some 1,200 parents, students and staff.

A brief PTA meeting from 7:00 - 7:30 will precede the craft/activities portion of the program. Adult crafts include macrame plant pot hangers, leathercraft, cooper tooling, cake decorating, basket making, ceramics painting and volleyball for the more active. Students will have plaster-craft painting, BINGO with educational games and prizes and rollerskating for the six-year-olds and under.

In addition, Joel Kaylor will demonstrate how to "throw pots" and other pottery skills and the computer and reading resource room also will open for parents and students' use.

Babysitting will be provided for Stanley families. Students must be accompanied by their parents to attend.

Entertainment Review

By Roger O. Lasky

The band leaders of READYMADE FAMILY and SPICE OF LIFE wish to give their appreciation to all the sisters and brothers who came out to their "Battle of the Bands" last week, and also give thanks to KYAC D.J. Tom Reddick for dropping in. SPICE OF LIFE will be performing for one of the Masonic organizations on February 13 at Yankee Doodle Hall, 1313 So. "J", and READYMADE FAMILY will be doing their thang for Bellevue Community February 13 at the college. FRESH, pound for pound is one of the best four piece acts in the Northwest. They played the Caballeros lost weekend and did an outstanding job. They will sit out this week, but will see action next week at Tyree-Inn in Olympia on February 20, and Washington State University in Pullman, Washington February 21. JONAH'S WHALE, the Northwest's top disco band is back from a three week engagement in Vancouver BC. This week you can catch them at the Back Forty. Then maybe a Sunday Special at the Amvets? Black Arts/West Theatre is headed this way February 22, so watch out for more information.

Something To Think About

By Barbara Henderson

Many things are happening this week pertaining to Black History. In all the events and programs scheduled for this week I'm almost sure that there will be the singing of the National Black Anthem, "Lift Every Voice and Sing", whose words are by James Weldon Johnson and music by J. Rosamond Johnson. To me, this song sums up all there is to the Black struggle. It is telling Black people to "reach out", to be bold and speak out. It is a good thing that Black people have that faith that better days will come, that never ending belief in the future. This song symbolizes the pride and dignity the Black man possesses. Without the National Black Anthem I don't believe Black History Week would be as meaningful. Usually the National Black Anthem is played at the beginning of all Black History programs. That's a beautiful way to start any program. Right on!

Mann's Bits and Pieces

The Sonics shook hands with an old friend of theirs over the weekend, namely last place in the Pacific Division. After dropping successive games to Golden State and Phoenix the Sonics now have lost 11 out of the past 12 games.

During the Golden State game in Oakland the Sonics played well enough to win, discounting the last quarter of the ball game. Without Leonard Gray and Fred Brown in the lineup it was just too much to overcome. With the Sonics now moving into the last few months of their season, things are beginning to look even darker for the Sonics as they now have 3 men on the sick list, with Calvin Skinner joining Brown and Gray..... Seattle's loss to Phoenix Sunday night in the Coliseum in overtime was the first game that the Sonics have lost this year in overtime.

.....Quote from Marv Harshman: "I have said before that we are a good basketball team. We are not a great team, but each time we play we get a little closer."..... Gene Barton, coach of the Bruins, commenting on last year's team: "I wouldn't say UCLA actually dominated the PAC-8 last year. They lost CAL by four, USC by four, lost by 22 at Washington."..... Bill Russell, commenting to a reporter: "When we're running the offense right, they can't keep Tommy away from the hoop."

Health Education Project Directed at Urban Youth

Speaking to sixteen college men at the March of Dimes (MOD) headquarters in White Plains, (N. Y.), Charles Wright, MOD assistant director of youth activities, explored the psyche of the urban youth.

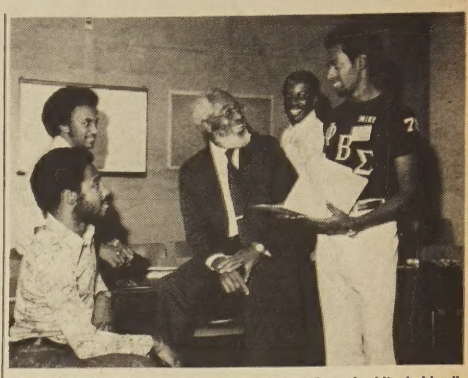
"A day in the life of a black city boy can often be confusing and unfulfilling," says Mr. Wright. "He is uncertain about what the future holds, his family and friends are on his back, and he's not feeling too well because he doesn't know how to take proper care of himself.

"Your job as counselors and big brothers in the Boys' Clubs of America facilities around the country is to pick up the pieces in this boy's life and help him put himself back together."

This talk was part of an orientation workshop launching a pilot project, "Education for Parenthood". The young men, all members of Phi Beta Sigma, a predominantly black service fraternity, are very interested in focusing on black city boys and educating them about the present and future importance in their lives of good health habits.

The "Education for Parenthood" program is a cooperative effort of Phi Beta Sigma, the Boys' Clubs of America, and the March of Dimes. The fraternity provides volunteers; the Boys' Clubs has arranged for program testing at their sites in Chicago, Houston, Pittsburgh, and Washington, D.C.; and the March of Dimes gives funds for training and educational aids.

"The four-day workshop marks the beginning of an exciting, innovative program," says Mr. Wright. "Between the enthusiasm of the students and the knowledge we gained from the speakers, we are well on our way to meeting health education needs of boys who will be tomorrow's fathers."



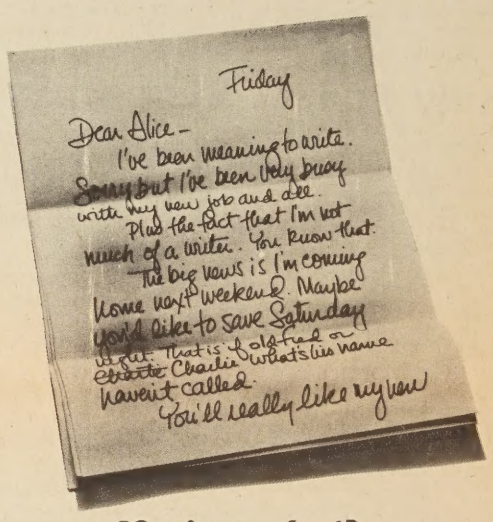
"BLACK BABIES DIE at a rate nearly twice that of white babies," Dr. Calvin Sinnette told members of Phi Beta Sigma during an "Education for Parenthood" workshop. Dr. Sinnette is professor of pediatrics and director of community pediatrics at Harlem Hospital Center in New York City.

Dr. Calvin Sinnette, Professor of Pediatrics and Director of Community Pediatrics at Harlem Hospital Center in New York City, gave some significant facts in his medical presentation. "Did you know that black babies die at a rate nearly twice as high as that of white babies," asked the doctor, "and that many infants are born junkies?"

He pointed out that the non-white population has an infant mortality rate of 30 per 1,000 births, as opposed to the white infant mortality rate of 15 per 1,000 births. Dr. Sinnette said that prematurity, prenatal infection, poor nutrition, congenital disorders, narcotic withdrawal syndrome, accidents, child abuse, and environmental hazards are underlying causes of this wide discrepancy. Boys in the cities can be made aware of these factors and fully appreciate the need for developing proper health care and good nutrition early in life.

To help the students better understand the boys they will be counseling, Herbert Lowe, assistant director of programs for the Boys' Clubs, coordinated role-playing skits with the trainees. Through value-probing exercises directed by Dr. Cynthia Morton, project consultant, the young men explored other forces at work on both themselves and the boys, like peer pressure, self-identity, and family background.

"Although results will not occur overnight," says Mr. Wright, "we believe the program will be successful and intend to expand it to the more than 250 cities where there are Phi Beta Sigma chapters."



Friday
Dear Alice -
I've been meaning to write.
Sorry but I've been very busy with my new job and all.
Plus the fact that I'm not much of a writer. You know that.
The big news is I'm coming home next weekend. Maybe you'd like to save Saturday night. That is if old fat ol'
Charlie Dull's not his name haven't called.
You'll really like my new

10 minutes for $1.

It'll take you about an hour to write a letter and say as much as you can in 10 minutes by phone. Then you may have to wait two weeks to get a reply.

And that 10-minute talk can be so very inexpensive when you do the following: 1) call any place within the state; 2) dial the number yourself, without operator assistance; and 3) call between the hours of 10 p.m. and 8 a.m.

Ten full minutes: just $1 or less, plus tax.

It's a nice way to lick the high cost of postage.

MANDATORY RETIREMENT

OLYMPIA -- A bill which would end mandatory retirement at 65 for non-federal public employes has been approved by the House Social and Health Services Committee and sent to the House for floor action.

Noting a current trend toward voluntary early retirement "by those who anticipate retirement and are prepared for it," Tacoma Reps. A.A. Adams, chairman and Ron Hanna, a key member of the committee, agreed the measure (HB 1391) would permit older employes to remain at their jobs with the option to retire "in their own time."

"Mandatory retirement for an alert, highly skilled and competent employe is cruel and unnecessary," they said. "It is preferable to allow the employe to make the decision rather than the employer who very often would prefer to keep a good worker on the job than to force him or her into unwanted retirement."
